

Interim CIO, CTO or CDO

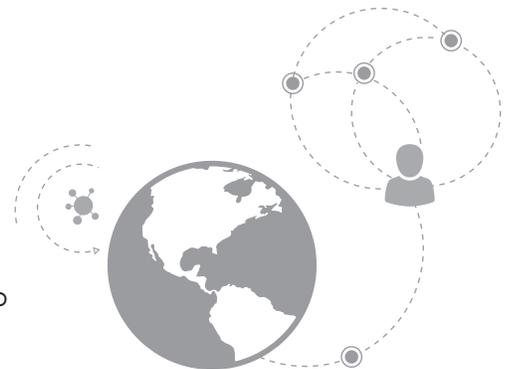

Technology is integral to nearly every business function in your organization. And, when it isn't functioning effectively, the negative impact on your business can be catastrophic. When it's time to make a leadership change, consider an Interim CIO, CTO or CDO (Chief Digital Officer) who can quickly grab the reins and transform performance of the information technology function within your company. These proven leaders can deliver the game-changing results your business needs to compete effectively and succeed.

Interim CIOs should possess a number of skills and capabilities. They certainly need to understand technology - to sort out hype from the reality. They need to discern the appropriate role of technology within your business and they need to grasp your company's culture and its role in supporting change across the enterprise. Cimphoni's interim leaders possess these skills and capabilities. And, when finished, they will help you recruit your next IT leader.

When your IT function has become a drag on the organization's ability to advance strategic priorities, it's time for an Interim CIO, CTO or CDO with the leadership skills, technical savvy and business expertise to deliver results.

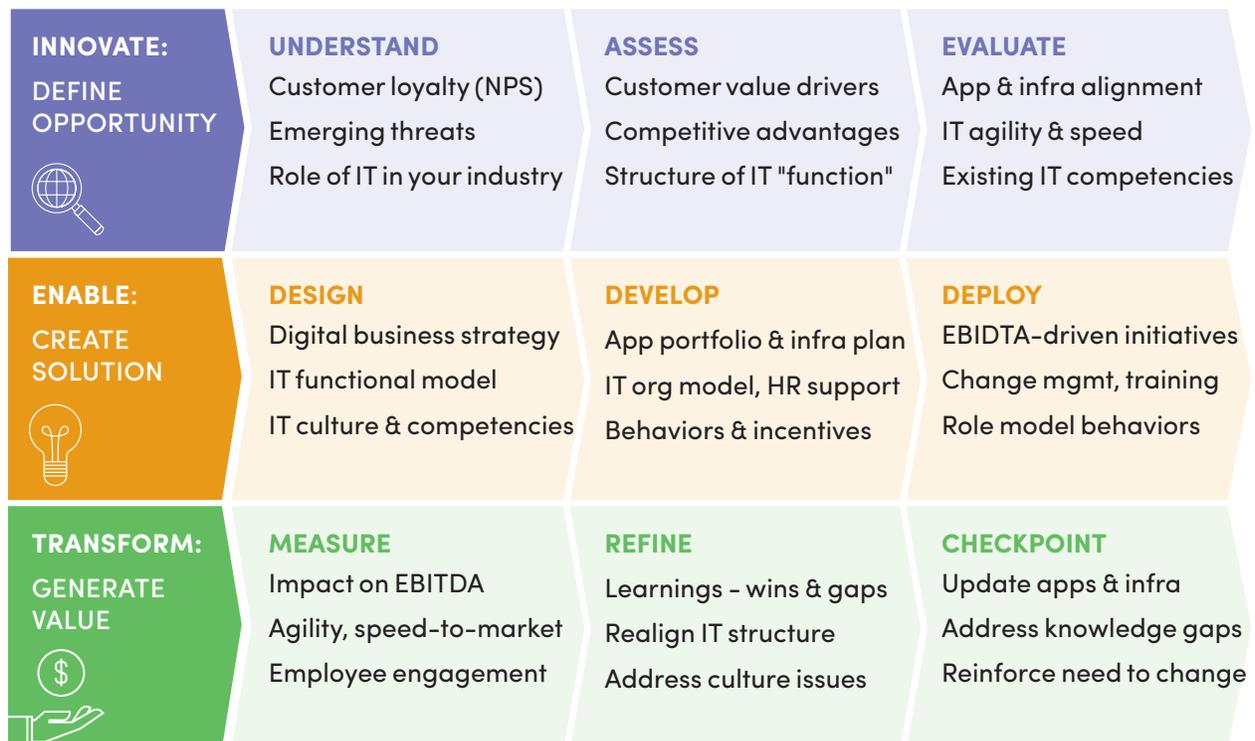

Benefits of bringing a Cimphoni Interim CIO, CTO or CDO into your organization:

- A Cimphoni Interim CIO will leverage our proven, methodology to assess your IT organization, diagnose issues and develop a plan to transform IT performance.
- We will engage business and IT leaders directly in defining an IT strategy and implementation roadmap using an extremely collaborative, non-technical approach. This will begin to change the way business and IT leaders partner to achieve the strategic goals of the enterprise.
- In addition to culture change and IT leadership development, we will look at IT as both an organization and a critical business function. We will then determine how best to structure this function across the enterprise.

Our Interim Leadership Delivery Model - From Opportunity to Value
